Every Thing necessary and useful in an Almanack.

To which is added,

The Life and Adventures of a FEMALE SOLDIER.

By PHILOMATHES.

THE World's a Bubble, and the Life of Man,

Less than a Span;

In his Conception wretched, from the Womb,

So to the Tomb;

Curst from the Cradle, and brought up to Years,

With Cares and Fears.

Who then to frail Mortality shall trust,

But limns in Water, or but writes in Dust.

The flying days and months are hurrying on,
Years press on years, impatient to be gone,
With eager steps to bring th' important hour,
When angry fires this system shall devour.

A FRAGMENT of ancient Poetry, collected in the Highlands of Scotland.

Translated from the GALLIC or ERSE Language.

AUTUMN is dark on the mountains ; grey mist rests on the hills. The whirlwind is heard on the heath. Dark rolls the river through the narrow plain. A tree stands alone on the hill, and marks the grave of Connal. The leaves whirl round with the wind, and strew the grave of the dead. At times are seen here the ghosts of the deceased, when the musing hunter alone stalks slowly over the heath.

Who can reach the source of thy race, O Connal ? And who recount thy fathers ? Thy family grew like an oak on the mountain, which meeteth the wind with its lofty head. But now it is torn from the earth. Who shall supply the place of Connal ?

Here was the din of arms ; and here the groans of the dying. Mournful are the wars of Fingal ! O Connal ! it was here thou didst fall. Thine arm was like a storm ; thy sword, a beam of the sky ; thy height, a rock on the plain ; thine eyes, a furnace of fire. Louder than a storm was thy voice, when thou confoundest the field. Warriors fell by thy sword, as the thistle by the staff of a boy.

Dargo the mighty came on like a cloud of thunder. His brows were contracted and dark. His eyes like two caves in a rock. Bright rose their swords on each side ; dire was the clang of their steel.

The daughter of Rinval was near ; Crimora, bright in the armour of man ; her hair loose behind, her bow in her hand. She followed the youth to the war, Connal her much beloved. She drew the string on Dargo ; but erring, pierced her Connal. He falls like an oak on the plain ; like a rock from the shaggy hill. What shall she do, hapless maid ! he bleeds ; her Connal dies. All the night long she cries, and all the day, O Connal, my love, and my friend ! With grief the sad mourner died.

Earth here encloseth the loveliest pair on the hill. The grass grows beneath the stones of their tomb ; I sit in the mournful shade. The wind sighs through the grass ; and their memory rushes on my mind. Undisturbed you now sleep together ; in the tomb of the mountain you rest alone.

The ATHENIAN
ORATOR
A FABLE.

"FABLES are such odd kinds of Toys."
(Says one who spoke his mind with free-
"They're neither fit for Men or Boys; (dom)
For Children can't, and Men won't read em."
I cannot think them right at all ;
The greatest Wits fail now and then.

JANUARY.

THIS month being cold, and seeing wood cannot be had without money, old batchelors and decayed widowers will do well to match with rich maids and wealthy widows, if either they can find. It appears that the kitchen will be more employed than the dairy, and a seat by the fire side more proper than a walk in the fields to look for primroses.

THIS being but a short month, our observation on it shall be as short, namely, that a good morning's draught to those that like it, will be thought very seasonable all the month long, as the mornings very likely will prove raw ; and though a draught of Malaga with a toast be in great vogue, great alterations will take place before 1776, or I am no conjuror.

THE wind blows hard in this month, yet if though canst walk five miles on thy own grounds, thou wilt find it not only healthful to thy body, but comfortable to thy purse. Physicians have in some places much work where the scurvy is epidemical, but I would strongly recommend good wholesome exercise to keep thy body in order.

He talk'd with wond'rous art and force,
 With rare contrivance, and invention ;—
 He might as well have taught his horse,
 The people paid him no attention.
 'Twould vex a Saint or fret a Job,
 He hardly knew what course to take.

A P R I L.

IF thy purse be troubled this month with gross humours, thou mayest have it purged by the lawyer, doctor or merchant, but, I say, deliver three and all of us from the three in conjunction. Some will think it most wholesome in the evening to take a pipe of tobacco, with a cheering cup, in a company of jolly fellows, and to get up betimes in the morning. For my own part, instead of Galen, Hippocrates or Parcellus, I take your Rare Ben, Arstippus, and Rabelais.

THIS has ever been accounted the merriest month in all the year trees now in blossom will hardly be bitten with the frost. Mari-mony will begin to vegetate, and single women will be penny-wife and by eaten those that like and can get it, while fowls and bacon will equally please others.

VI. JUNE, hath XXX Days. 1775.

(The people turn'd their heads to hear)
 " Once went a journey, all together,
 " The Winter time was drawing near,
 " It happened to be rainy weather.
 " The travellers on a river's side,
 " Saw that the floods began to swell.

JUNE.

NOW Cancer and Leo being hot signs many shall spend as much in one day as they can get in three, and never think of the fevers and pains they are laying in fodder for, nor of the twitches in the toes, many of them will receive before the year is out. By the position of the stars in regard to matrimony it appears, that a man had better marry a wife of ginger-bread than a scold, for if he is hungry he may eat up the one; but shall hardly lick his lips at the other.

" The swallow made no more ado,
 " But taking wing she soon flew o'er :
 " The eel, by swimming, soon got thro'
 " And wriggled up the farther shore."
 The people all, with one accord,
 Cry'd out, " and what did Ceres do ?"

JULY.

THE tavern will be more frequented than the church. Those who live in low lands or swamps would do well to change their places of abode, otherwise the doctor will cost them more than the butcher. Few minced pyes will be eaten this month, but limes and lemons will be in great demand. Adam's ale will not do in this month, unless well qualified with good spirit.

VIII. A U G U S T, hath XXXI Days. 1775.

“ What did she do ?” the Sage replies,
 “ She blush’d to see you all such fools,
 “ Your own distress can’t make you wise,
 Much less the rhet’ric of the Schools.
 “ Of Philip you’ll not hear a word,
 “ But run to catch at something new.”

A U G U S T.

IF it should rain maids and featherbeds this month, catch the featherbeds first, and the maids you may catch afterwards. About the middle and end good wine, (if red so much the better) will be very proper, and if you are in health you will find good butchers-meat and poultry agree with your stomach, and a dose of bark by way of bitters to your wine will not be amiss.

1775. SEPTEMBER, hath XXX Days. 1X.

The people found that they were caught,
And paid attention to their friend,
The fable was a lucky thought,
It made them wiser in the end.
We're all Athenians, troth in this :
Ay, I myself too, now and then.

SEPTEMBER.

THOSE light-heeled, light-fingered blades, who during the warm months, made free with other men's horses and cattle will be afraid of their staying them in the face before winter sets in. Those who have had no fevers during the last two months, will find it unwholsome to get drunk and lie out in the dew, but be that as it may, I will hold any of you fifty pounds to a hickory-nut that the days and nights will be equal about the 23d.

X. OCTOBER. hath XXXI Days. 1775.

I've often heard a grave discourse,
Exceeding wise, exceeding dull,
That struck with full as little force
As any tale of Cock and Bull ;
But fables seldom come amiss ;
They're wrote for boys but read by men.

O C T O B E R.

A MAN may take his female bed-fellow in his arms without danger of over-heating his reins, and of which a good account may be given some nine months after. We find by the planets that the length of the days, and money with many poor men, will begin to grow shorter.

1775. NOVEMBER, hath XXX Days. XI.

The DIFFERENCE between To-DAY and To-MORROW.

TO-Day man's drest in gold and silver bright,
 Wrapt in a shroud before To-morrow's night :
 To-Day he's feeding on delicious food ;
 To-morrow dead, unable to do good.

N O V E M B E R.

THE old proverb for this month, " Let the thresher take his flail and the ship no more sail," will but in part hold good in the country these calculations are made for; yet him that then goes with his gloves in his pocket, the weather may invite to put them on; and him that is in bed with another man's wife, her husband may invite to come out. If the weather proves as it sometimes does, you will find boots a good preservative against the wet.

XII. DECEMBER, hath XXXI Days. 1775.

To Day he's nice and icorns to feed on crumbs,
 To Morrow he's himself a dish for worms :
 To day he's grand, majestic, all delight :
 Ghastful and pale before To-Morrow night :
 True as the Scripture says, Man's life's a span,
 The present moment is the Life of Man.

D E C E M B E R.

NOW enters the old champion CHRISTMAS, armed with spit and dripping-paw, bidding defiance to all hungry stomachs. Beasts, fowls and fish come to general execution. Cooks will be more in request than hay-makers, and there shall be more resort to the shops for plumbs, than to the garden for green pease. A purse of gold will joy the heart, and a belly full of roast beef appease hunger.

HANNAH SNELL, was born in Fryer-Street in the Parish of St. Hellen's, in the city of Worcester, in England, on the 23d day of April, 1723. When the Father and Mother of Hannah died, Hannah came to London, and contracted an acquaintance with one James Summs, a sailor, who was a Dutchman. In a little time Summs, made his addresses to her as a lover, and gained her consent, and was married to her at the Fleet, on the sixth day of January, 1743-4. But all his promises of friendship, proved instances of the highest perfidy, and he turned out the worst and most unnatural of husbands. When she was seven months gone with child, he, finding himself deeply involved in debt, made an elopement from her. Notwithstanding these her calamities, she patiently bore herself up under them, and two months after her husband's departure was delivered of a daughter which lived no more than seven months. As she was now free from all the ties arising from nature and consanguinity; she thought herself privileged to roam in quest of the man, who, without reason, had injured her so much; for there are no bounds to be set either to love, jealousy or hatred, in the female mind. That she might execute her designs with the better grace, and the more success, she boldly commenced a man, at least in her dress, and no doubt she had a right to do so, since she had the real soul of a man in her breast. Dismayed at no accidents, and giving a full scope to the genuine bent of her heart, she put on a suit of her brother-in-laws cloths, assumed this name, and set out on the 23d of November, 1745, and travelled to Coventry, with a view of finding her husband, where she insisted on the 27th of the said month. With the regiment she marched from Coventry to Carlisle, where she learned the military exercise, which she now performs with as much skill and dexterity as any serjeant or corporal in his Majesty's service. An officer in the regiment being jealous of her being his rival, with a young woman he intended to debauch, took an opportunity to accuse her with neglect of duty to the commanding officer for which she was sentenced to receive 600 lashes, 500 of which she received, having her hands tied to the Castle gate, for a crime which nature put it out of her power to commit, the other hundred was omitted at the intercession of some of the officers. This ill treatment together with some fear of her being discovered by a new recruit who was her former acquaintance, inspired her with a resolution to desert, which she effected. However, whether despair or the hopes of again meeting that unfaithful man, who had made her the mother of a helpless infant, actuated her breast and gave her passions a preternatural spring, so it was, that she courageously enlisted herself in Capt. Graham's company in Col. Frazer's regiment, and soon after there was a draught made, to go abroad in admiral Boscawen's fleet, and she chanced to be one of the number draughted, and went immediately on board the Swallow sloop.

When they first set sail, they had as fine weather, and as fair winds as could possibly be wished for: But no sooner were they arrived in the Bay of Biscay, than a hurricane arose, which continued several days, whereby they were all in danger of being swallowed up. After they had for several days been beat about in imminent danger, they at length with great difficulty arrived in the port of Lisbon, where they continued three weeks, because the vessel was so much damaged. Nothing material happened during the three weeks. It often happens for the wise and noble purposes of Heaven, that one misfortune succeeds another, as close as the waves on the sea shore; so the Swallow set sail in company with the Vigilant man of war, in order to join the admiral's squadron; and the next night after their departure, another violent storm happened in which the Swallow not only lost sight of the Vigilant, but also sprung her main-mast, lost most of her rigging, and was so much damaged in her hold, that all the sailors, and marines were obliged to take their several turns at the pump, she not only willingly took her turn at the pump of a sinking vessel, but also performed the several offices of a common sailor, and in both qualities behaved with such judgment and intrepidity, that, next under God, she was esteemed by the ship's company as a kind of deliverer, and an instrument of their preservation. The Swallow after this disaster made the best of her way to Gibraltar. The ship refitted here with the utmost expedition, and sailed for the Madeira Islands, where she took in such wines, and other provisions, as was thought necessary for the intended voyage. From thence they sailed to the Cape of Good-Hope, and in their voyage, were put upon short, and some time after half allowance. When they arrived at the Cape, they there met with the admiral in the Namur, which was great joy to them; and our heroine being disappointed hitherto of meeting her faithless husband, and now seeing the fleet all in company, was in hopes of acquiring some glory as a soldier, knowing the reason of this fleet's being fitted out was to annoy the enemies of her country, which soon happened according to her wishes, as the fleet soon sailed from this port for Morufus, on which place they begun their first attack; which did not hold long, I shall now proceed to their march to Pondicherry. The attack continued eleven weeks, part of which time they had no bread, most of their food being rice; and the many bombs and shells thrown among them, killed and wounded many of their men, during this space of time, she behaved with the greatest bravery and intrepidity, such as was consistent with the character of an English soldier, and though so deep in water, fired 37 rounds of shot, and received a shot in the groin, six shots in one leg, and five in the other. The siege being now broke up, she was sent to an hospital at Cuddalore under the care of two able physicians, but she not willing to be discovered, extracted the ball out of her groin herself, and always dressed that wound; and in about three months was perfectly cured; but most of the fleet being sailed before her recovery, she was left behind, and sent on board the Tartar Pink, which then lay in the harbour, where she remained, doing the duty of a sailor, till the return of the fleet from Madras, when she was turned over to the Eltham, Capt. Lloyd commander, and sailed for Bombay, where they arrived in about ten days, then they sailed to Montserrat, to take the Royal Duke Indiaman under convoy, to bring her to Fort St. David's. At Bombay her master being on shore, she was obliged to watch in her turn, as is usual on such occasions. The Eltham sailed with the rest of the fleet from Fort St. David's and kept company till they came to the Cape of Good-Hope; when the Eltham had orders to make the best of her way to Lisbon, they set sail from Lisbon the 3d of May, and arrived at Spithead the 1st of June, from thence she proceeded to London, without ever being discovered, and lodged along with her brother, Mr. James Gray carpenter, in Skip-Street, Wapping, to the great joy of all her friends.

* * More particulars relating to this wonderful woman, with an account of her husband, will be in our next.

AMERICAN CONGRESS. ASSOCIATION.

WE his Majesty's most loyal subjects, the Delegates of the several Colonies of New-Hampshire, Massachusetts-Bay, Rhode-Island Connecticut, New-York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, the three lower Counties of Jewcastle, Kent, and Suffex on Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, and South-Carolina, deputed to represent them in a continental Congress, held at Philadelphia, on the fifth of September, 1774, avowing our allegiance to his Majesty, our affection and regard for our fellow-subjects in Great-Britain and elsewhere, affected with the deepest anxiety, and most alarming apprehensions at those grievances and distresses, with which his Majesty's American subjects are oppressed, and having taken under our most serious deliberation, the state of the whole continent, find, that the present unhappy situation of our affairs, is occasioned by a ruinous system of colony administration adopted by the British Ministry about the year 1763, evidently calculated for enslaving these Colonies, and with them, the British Empire. In prosecution of which system, various Acts of Parliament have been passed for raising a revenue in America, for depriving the American subjects, in many instances, of the constitutional trial by jury, exposing their lives to danger, by directing a new and illegal trial beyond seas, for crimes alledged to have been committed in America: And in prosecution of the same system, several late, cruel and oppressive Acts have been passed respecting the town of Boston and the Massachusetts Bay, and also an act for extending the province of Quebec, so as to border on the western frontiers of these Colonies, establishing an arbitrary government therein, and discouraging the settlement of British subjects in that wide extended country; thus by the influence of civil principles and ancient prejudices to dispose the inhabitants to act with hostility against the free Protestant Colonies, whenever a wicked Ministry shall chuse to direct them.

To obtain redress of these grievances, which threaten destruction to the lives, liberty, and property of his Majesty's subjects in North-America, we are of opinion, that a non-importation, non-consumption, and non-exportation agreement, faithfully adhered to, will prove the most speedy, effectual, and peaceable measure:—And therefore we do, for ourselves, and the inhabitants of the several Colonies, whom we represent, firmly agree and associate under the sacred ties of virtue, honour, and love of our country, as follows:

FIRST, That from and after the first day of December next, we will not import into British America, from Great-Britain or Ireland, any goods, wares or merchandize whatsoever, or from any other place any such goods, wares or merchandize, as shall have been exported from Great-Britain or Ireland, nor will we, after that day, import any East-India tea from any part of the world; nor any molasses, syrups, panicles, coffee, or piemento, from the British plantations, or from Dominica; nor wines from Madeira, or the Western-Islands; nor foreign Indigo.

SECOND, That we will neither import nor purchase any slaves imported after 1st day December next, after which time, we will wholly discontinue the slave trade, and will neither be concerned in it ourselves, nor will we hire our vessels, nor sell our commodities or manufactures to those who are concerned in it.

THIRD, As a non-consumption agreement, strictly adhered to, will be an effectual security for the observation of the non-importation, we, as above, solemnly agree and associate, that, from this day, we will not purchase or use any tea imported on account of the East-India company, or any on which a duty hath been or shall be paid; and from and after the 1st day of March next, we will not purchase or use any East-India tea whatever, nor will we, nor shall any person for or under us purchase or use any of those goods, wares, or merchandize, we have agreed not to import, which we shall know, or have cause to suspect, were imported after the first day of December, except such as come under the rules and directions of the tenth article hereafter mentioned.

FOURTH, The earnest desire we have not to injure our fellow-subjects in Great-Britain, Ireland, or the West-Indies, induces us to suspend a non-exportation until the tenth day of September 1775; at which time if the said acts and parts of Acts of the British Parliament, herein-after mentioned, are not repealed, we will not, directly or indirectly, export any merchandize or commodity whatsoever, to Great-Britain, Ireland or the West-Indies, except Rice to Europe.

FIFTH, Such as are merchants, and use the British and Irish Trade, will give orders, as soon as possible, to their factors, agents and correspondents, in Great Britain and Ireland, not to ship any goods to them on any pretence whatsoever, as they cannot be received in America; and if any merchant residing in Great-Britain or Ireland, shall directly or indirectly ship any goods, wares or merchandize, for America, in order to break the said non-importation agreement, or in any manner contravene the same, on such unworthy conduct being well attested, ought to be made public; and on the same being so done we will not from thenceforth have any commercial connexion with such merchant.

SIXTH, That such as are owners of vessels will give positive orders to their Captains, or masters, not to receive on board their vessels any goods prohibited by the said non-importation agreement, on pain of immediate dismissal from their service.

SEVENTH. We will use our utmost endeavours to improve the breed of sheep and increase their numbers to the greatest extent, and to that end, we will kill them as sparingly as may be, especially those of the most profitable kind; nor will we export any to the West-Indies, or elsewhere; and those of us who are or may become over stocked with, or can conveniently spare any sheep, will dispose of them to our neighbours, especially to the poor sort, on moderate terms.

EIGHTH. That we will in our several stations encourage frugality, economy, and industry; and promote agriculture, arts, and the manufactures of this country, especially that of wool; and will discountenance and discourage, every species of extravagance and dissipation, especially all horse-racing, and all kinds of gaming, cock-fighting, exhibitions of shews, plays, and other expensive diversions and entertainments. And on the death of any relation or friend, none of us, or any of our families, will go into any further mourning dress, than a black crape or ribbon on the arm or hat for Gentlemen, and a black ribbon and necklace for Ladies, and we will discontinue the giving of gloves and scarfs at funerals.

NINTH. That such as are venders of goods or merchandize, will not take advantage of the scarcity of goods that may be occasioned by this association, but will sell the same at the rates we have been respectively accustomed to do, for twelve months last past.—And if any vender of goods or merchandize, shall sell any such goods on higher terms, or shall in any manner, or by any device whatsoever, violate or depart from this agreement, no person ought, nor will any of us deal with any such person, or his or her factor or agent, at any time thereafter, for any commodity whatever.

TENTH. In case any merchant, trader, or other persons shall import any goods or merchandize after the first day of December, and before the first day of February next, the same ought forthwith at the election of the owner, to be either re-shipped or delivered up to the committee of the county or town wherein they shall be imported, to be stored at the risk of the importer, until the non-importation agreement shall cease, or be sold under the direction of the committee aforesaid; and in the last mentioned case, the owner or owners of such goods, shall be reimbursed (out of the sales) the first cost and charges, the profit if any, to be applied towards relieving and employing such poor inhabitants of the town of Boston, as are immediate sufferers by the Boston Port-

Bill; and a particular account of all goods so returned, stored, or sold, to be inserted in the public papers; and if any goods or merchandizes shall be imported after the said first day of February, the same ought forthwith to be sent back again, without breaking any of the packages.

ELEVENTH. That a committee be chosen in every county, city and town, by those who are qualified to vote for Representatives in the Legislature, whose business it shall be attentively to observe the conduct of all persons touching this association; and when it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of a majority of any such committee, that any person within the limits of their appointment has violated this association, that such majority do forthwith cause the truth of the case to be published in the Gazette, to the end that all such foes to the rights of British America may be publicly known, and universally condemned as the enemies of American liberty; and thenceforth we respectively will break off all dealings with him or her.

TWELFTH. That the committee of correspondence in the respective colonies, do frequently inspect the entries of their custom-houses, and inform each other from time to time of the true state thereof, and of every other material circumstance that may occur relative to this association.

THIRTEENTH. That all manufactures of this country be sold at reasonable prices, so that no undue advantage be taken of a future scarcity of goods.

FOURTEENTH. And we do further agree and resolve that we will have no trade, commerce, dealings or intercourse whatsoever, with any colony or province, in North-America which shall not accede to, or which shall hereafter violate this association, but will hold them as unworthy of the rights of freedom, and as inimical to the liberties of their country.

And we do solemnly bind ourselves and our constituents, under the ties aforesaid, to adhere to this association, untill such parts of the several Acts of parliament passed since the close of the last war, as impose or continue duties on tea, wine, molasses, syrups, paneles, coffee, sugar, piemento, indigo, foreign paper, glass and painters colours, imported into America, and extend the powers of the Admiralty courts beyond their ancient limits, deprive the American subject of trial by jury, authorize the judge's certificate to indemnify the prosecutor from damages, that he might otherwise be liable to from a trial by his Peers, require oppressive security from a claimant of ships or goods seized, before he shall be allowed to defend his property, are repealed.—And until that part of the Act of the 12. G. 3. chap. 24. entitled, “An Act for the better securing his Majesty's dock-yards, magazines, ships, ammunition, and stores,” by which any persons charged with committing any of the offences therein described, in America, may be tried in any shire or county within the realm, is repealed.—And until the four Acts passed in the last session of Parliament, viz. That for stopping the Port and blocking up the harbour of Boston.—That for altering the Charter and Government of the Massachusetts Bay.—And that which is entitled, “An Act for the better administration of justice, &c.—And that “For extending the limits of Quebec, &c. are repealed. And we recommend it to the provincial Conventions, and to the Committees in the respective Colonies, to establish such further regulations as they may think proper, for carrying into execution this association.

The foregoing Association was signed by every member of the Congress.
